

ABSTRACT

Superconducting ceramics having relatively high critical temperatures are composed of rare earth metals, alkaline earth metals and copper. 5 They have few defects and a limited polycrystalline interfacial area.